

I find it hard to believe that in this day and age it is still acceptable for huge corporations to so openly violate federal rules that are supposed to protect the American people. If Sinclair goes through with their plan to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary just days before the election, this will indeed be a black mark on the record of the FCC.

Sinclair has the privilege of using "public" airwaves gratis, and should, in turn, be required to do a service to its viewing public. Instead, they are planning to try whatever method they can to skew voter opinions in favor of an administration that allows them to grow like a cancer--uncontrolled and set to destroy those in their path.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
